

Spadade View BnB

A Home Rooted in Courage, Dignity, and Freedom

Welcome to Spadade View BnB

Welcome to Spadade View BnB, a home rooted in courage, dignity, and freedom. Named after Elias Ceku Yende (1936), affectionately known as Spadade, this space honours a man who lived by principle and refused to bow to oppression. He could not accept the injustices of the apartheid system, and as a result, he was often dismissed and undermined in formal work. Yet he found purpose and meaning as a guardian and provider, raising and supporting his family through honest work.

With his bicycle, he sold milk in Alexandra township and later flowers in Soweto, sharing beauty, life, and care with his community. Spadade loved plants and flowers, believing that nurturing growth—whether in nature or in people—is a true act of freedom. He encouraged those around him to think deeply, reflect critically, and never take issues at face value. His life was a testament to integrity, moral courage, and the power of conscious living.
